

Card game features 'Amazing Places'

Parents' hassles over keeping kids occupied during summer travel can be remedied with Birdcage Press' "Amazing Places: National Parks" card game. The game, which combines educational activities with fun, has just won a Parents' Choice Foundation Approved Award, along with a coveted Mr. Dad Seal of Approval. The card game helps to stimulate children's minds and engage each other in interactive play and conversation.

Amazing Places: National Parks card game brings to life 52 of America's wildest and most precious sanctuaries. Each is also marked with the standard four suits, so any card game can be played with the deck. Featured locations include a variety of scenic and interesting parks and attractions ranging from Yellowstone to the Everglades; and the Statue of Liberty to the USS Arizona.

The game costs about $10 and is available in museums and gift, book and toy stores, and online.
